The Whole forming the moſt comprehenſive LIBRARY of UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE that was ever publiſhed in the Engliſh Language.

By WILLIAM HENRY HALL, ESQ.
OF MILLMAN-PLACE, BEDFORD ROW, London;
Aſſiſted by Gentlemen of Scientific Knowledge, whoſe Names appear in the Work.

Advantages peculiar to HALL's Encyclopædia.

1. The purchaſe of this Work will be near Ten Guineas cheaper than any other Cyclopædia or Encyclopædia, and the Page being much larger than that of the Cyclopædia, each Number contains a greater Quantity of Letter-Preſs.

2. Three Sheets of Letter-Preſs are given in every Number throughout the whole Work; and, inſtead of the cuſtomary Plan of giving only One Copper-Plate in every Fourth Number, in this Work One is delivery with every Number, and ſome of them contain Two, which is more in Quantity than was ever given in any other Dictionary; beſides which the Plates ſurpaſs every other Publication extant, and the ſubjects are more judiciouſly choſen, and infinitely more numerous.

3. By the Adoption of this new and improved Plan of adding complete Syſtems on every Science, and diſtinct Treatiſes on all the principal Arts, and incorporating the Whole in Alphabetical Order, it will ſave the Trouble of making 50 or 100 References, when not one is neceſſary.

4. This Work, by its new and improved Plan, is not only uſeful as a Dictionary to refer to, but valuable as a Work of general Entertainment, as each Science is brought into one Point of View, ſo as to comprehend a Complete Circle of Science, independent of the Alphabetical Arrangement of the different Words. Theſe Advantages, compared with other Dictionaries on the old Plan, will at once appear conſpicuous to every Man of Science.

☞ A Liſt of Subſcribers to each of the above Works will be printed and delivered Gratis, in the laſt Numbers.
